

Heroes of Three Wars Will March In Parade Today

Principal Features of 4th of July Will Be Exercises to Be Held at Peace Monument.

SPANISH VETERANS PLAN CELEBRATION

Baseball Games, Special Theatrical Performances and Races at Lakewood to Provide Amusement.

Today a nation bows in reverence to the indomitable spirit of 1776. One hundred and forty-six years ago today a little group of men flouted a world power and affixed their signatures to the Declaration of Independence. From a sparsely settled colony this country has grown into one of the world's greatest nations—and today the birthday of a great republic will be honored through the length and breadth of the United States.

Atlanta will bedeck herself in gala attire and add her voice to this great hymn of reverence. The legislature and city hall will close, the busy marts of finance will be still, factories will suspend operation and stores will close.

Peace Monument Exercises.

The chief feature of the celebration of the day will be the great procession to Piedmont park of representatives of all civic and patriotic organizations and services at the Peace monument sponsored by the Atlanta Woman's club. All theaters will have special performances; the Southern baseball league teams will play morning and afternoon at Ponce de Leon park, and amateur teams will flash over the diamonds of the city; golf tournaments will hold sway at the country clubs; horse and auto races will provide action at Lakewood park; while community singing and hand concerts will entertain at other points.

From all over Georgia delegates will assemble here to attend the one-day state convention of the Spanish-American War veterans and to observe the twenty-fifth anniversary of the conflict with Spain.

At 5 o'clock this afternoon, just following a concert by the city band, a great procession will enter Piedmont park and march to the Peace monument, near which exercises directed by the Woman's club will take place. The Elks' band and the city band will furnish music for the occasion. Organizations and various bodies will carry flags, banners and other emblems of patriotism.

All units taking part in the procession will assemble at Piedmont park near Lanier monument on the east side of the parade ground. From Lanier monument the parade will march across the parade ground to the steps of the Peace monument, where the exercises will be held.

Confederate, World War and Spanish War veterans will be given a place of honor in the procession. Groups of naturalized citizens, bearing their native emblems of patriotism, will add much to the spectacular scene of the parade. John Ashley Jones is marshal of the day.

To Film Procession.

Moving pictures will be made of the great procession at Piedmont park and these will be shown on the screen later.

Following is the official program: Band concert. Procession. Community singing. Invocation, Rev. L. O. Bricker. "America the Beautiful," Mrs. H. H. Hamilton. Introductory remarks, Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, president of Atlanta Woman's club. Five minute talks by Governor Walker, Mayor Sims, R. E. Harvey. Citizenship pledge, led by Mrs. B. H. Hamilton. "Dixie," by the Elks' band. Address, Benjamin P. Gaultard. American creed, led by Mrs. Norman Sharp. "Star Spangled Banner." Prayer for world peace, Dr. W. W. Manning. Procession to Peace monument for decoration. Floating of patriotic balloons by Junior chamber of commerce.

How Old Is Tea?

There is no mark in history which tells when the first cup of tea was brewed. But according to a Chinese legend, the virtues of tea were discovered by Emperor Chinnung about 2737 B. C.

The progressive housewife of today readily sees the virtues of the Want-ads. She uses them as daily aids.

SOLONS TO ENJOY FOURTH OF JULY AT THEIR HOMES

Memorial Exercises Proposed in Honor of the Late Senator Thomas E. Watson Are Postponed.

After the introduction of a dozen or more bills, three or four resolutions, and after the clerk of the house and secretary of the senate had read the list of committees as appointed by Speaker W. Cecil Neill and President George H. Carswell, the Georgia legislature adjourned Tuesday morning until Thursday at 11:30 o'clock and a large portion of the membership immediately began plans for celebrating the Fourth of July.

Chief interest in Tuesday's session naturally centered in the committee appointments. Comment, afterwards, was generally extremely commendatory and both President Carswell and Speaker Neill seem to have performed an arduous task satisfactorily to practically the entire membership.

Of the important committees, the chairmanships were as forecast in The Constitution Tuesday morning. J. H. Culpepper, of Fayette, heads the house appropriations committee, while Senator Lanford, of the 15th, is chairman of the senate appropriations.

Milner Given Big Office.
J. Hermann Milner, of Dodge, is vice-chairman of the rules committee in the house. Haddock, of Early, is chairman of general agriculture No. 1, in the house, while Smith, of the 45th, heads the senate agriculture committee. Smith, of the 35th, heads the senate committee on constitutional amendments. This will probably be an important committee this session, due to the fact that the many proposals for remedying the taxation tangle, practically all are in the form of constitutional amendments.

Turner, of Brooks, is chairman of the house committee on public highways, while Coates, of the 14th, heads the corresponding body for the senate.

The lady members, Kempton, of Fulton and Napier, of Bibb, both drew assignments to important committees. Miss Kempton is on the ways and means and is chairman of the Western & Atlantic Railroad committee.

Wants U. S. Act Amended.

In the house, Representative Atkinson, of Stewart, introduced a resolution, which was adopted, which calls upon the congress of the United States to amend the transportation act of 1920 as to restore to the states control over intrastate railroad rates within their borders. The resolution sets forth that the recent decision of the supreme court, in what is known as the Wisconsin Rate case, has practically put entire control of all railroad rates, intrastate as well as interstate, in the hands of the federal government.

McMillan Leaves For Final Plunge Into Far North

Will Winter Again in Arctic If Not Back by September, 1924.

Sydney, N. S., July 3.—Captain Donald B. McMillan, Arctic explorer, and his picked crew of six sailed for the Far North tonight on the Bowdoin on another long cruise, the primary object of which is to determine, if possible, whether another "ice age" is in the process of formation. The advance of glaciers in the last 75 years has indicated this, and McMillan hopes to bring back the scientific proof.

"If I am not back in Sydney harbor by September, 1924, then I will remain in the Arctic one more year," McMillan said just before he cast off. He will make winter quarters at Cape Sabine.

Captain McMillan took with him a bronze tablet, which he will place at Cape Sabine; where 18 members of the famous Greenley expedition, back in 1884, died of starvation and exposure.

SAVANNAH YOUTH IS DENIED POLICE ACCOUTREMENTS

Savannah, Ga., July 3.—A tiny lad of not more than six years marched into the police station here today, showed proudly on his waist a special officer's badge and demanded to have a cap and a billie. He declared he had heard of the recent "riot" and wanted to be a policeman. When gently declined, he refused to give his name.

FIGURES DISPROVE STAND OF BRITAIN ON IMMIGRATION

Acerbity in Comment Due to Temporary Holding of Eight Emigrants Out of 77,342.

U. S. LIQUOR RULING PARTLY RESPONSIBLE

"Cream" of British Settlers Sent to Colonies; Sullivan Terms "Melting Pot" Inapplicable.

BY MARK SULLIVAN.

London, July 3.—During the year that ended Saturday 77,342 persons from Great Britain entered the United States as immigrants. Of this number, 77,334 entered without difficulty or inconvenience, are now residents of the United States, have jobs paying them two to five times more than they received before and are settling down comfortably into the neighborliness of our American people.

The remaining eight individuals, however, who were the last eight that arrived, encountered difficulty. The quota from Great Britain being almost filled, they were detained at Ellis Island until their eligibility under the law could be determined.

About the 77,334 who came in without any inconvenience, there was no publicity—certainly none of any irritating kind. But about the eight there has been, in the space of dispatches from New York to the English papers and in the shape of comments by the English papers on these dispatches, an amount and kind of publicity which impairs the friendliness of the two nations.

Critical Remarks.
In England this comment about the temporary detention of eight British immigrants takes the form of critical remarks as to America's institutions, its laws, and its methods of enforcing those laws. It is assumed that American and American officials are wholly to blame.

Conceivably this may be so. And yet an American may be forgiven for observing that the eight British citizens who had trouble were first-class passengers; and that persons of the sort who pay first-class passenger fares might be expected to have the intelligence and the capacity for the care of their own affairs, to familiarize themselves in advance with the conditions of entrance into America and to learn whether the quota of their country was or was not exhausted.

The comment of some of the London papers has an atmosphere which would imply that there was some kind of malevolence on the part of the American officials. And yet the fact is that the American officials who have charge of immigration, the Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, is himself, a native of Great Britain, who frequently revisits his native Wales and has, as it happens, a degree of sentiment about his birthplace which leads him to share, to an exceptional degree, the regard of his fellow countrymen.

PARK BOND ISSUE ORDINANCE SIGNED

Mayor Also Clears Way for Work to Begin on Broad St. Extension and Hunter St. Approach.

Mayor Walter A. Sims Tuesday afternoon signed ordinances of council providing for the $2,000,000 park bonds election on September 5, for the special tax area to clear the way for building the Hunter street approach to the Spring street viaduct, and for the opening of Broad street from Mitchell to Whitehall streets.

All three measures, the most important pieces of constructive municipal legislation in recent months, were approved by overwhelming majorities of council and the aldermanic board in session Monday afternoon.

The property in the special Hunter street tax area will be levied on at once for the $96,000 assessment provided in the ordinance to identify owners of property which will be damaged by the building of the approach.

While no objection to the assessment was voiced either at the public hearing held by the committee or at council, the possibility was considered that some property owners might seek an injunction to prevent the assessments being collected. In that case the city is prepared to fight to sustain the assessments and to clear away all legal obstructions in the way of early start of actual building operations.

Sponsors of the Broad street extension project were preparing Tuesday to make a canvass of all property owners in the area to be opened and to secure deeds to all the real estate necessary for the new street. The canvass will probably begin Thursday morning.

The Atlanta real estate board and the allied civic and commercial organizations also were laying their plans Tuesday for an intensive campaign in behalf of the $2,000,000 bond issue. The campaign will continue until the date of the primary, September 5.

Walker Is Ready To Send Message On Tax Problem

FORD MAY CAUSE HOUSE TO ELECT NEXT PRESIDENT

Political Expert Declares Entry of Auto Magnate Into Race Would Divide National Vote.

Chicago, July 3.—Professor Charles E. Merriam, noted political expert, and head of the political sciences department of the University of Chicago, declared Tuesday that Henry Ford's entry into the presidential race of 1924 would so materially decrease President Harding's chances of reelection that the House of Representatives would be likely to be called to name the next president.

Assuming that Ford runs as an independent and no candidate for two presidencies receives the majority of all the votes in the electoral college, the house would be the determining factor, Prof. Merriam pointed out. The House of Representatives, he said, would vote by states. He makes these observations:

The republicans would control California, Colorado, Connecticut, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, North Dakota, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Utah, Vermont, Washington, Wisconsin and Wyoming, a total of twenty-three.

The democrats would rule in Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri, Nevada, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia and West Virginia, a total of twenty.

The congressional representatives of the following four states, Professor Merriam said, are about equally divided between the two parties: Maryland, Montana, New Hampshire and New Jersey.

AL SMITH TO FIGHT FOR PRESIDENCY

Announcement Made Following Conference With Democratic National Committeeman.

New York, July 3.—Norman E. Mack, of Buffalo, democratic national committeeman, announced tonight after a conference with Governor Alfred E. Smith that the governor would enter the next democratic national convention as a contender for the nomination for president.

He said he believed the democratic national platform would carry a plank calling for modification or liberalizing of the Volstead act. "I think it will be to the advantage of the democrats to incorporate such a pledge," he said.

Mr. Mack added: "All of the powerful eastern seaboard states want the Volstead law modified. The greatest opposition to modification comes from the western states, which are normally republican. "The great industrial states like New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, Illinois and Ohio, and even Wisconsin and Maryland, are swinging around to the idea that the present national prohibition law is too drastic."

CLEVER STRANGER TRICKS JEWELERS ON MAIDEN LANE

New York, July 3.—Five Maiden Lane jewelers, noted for their keenness in sizing up people, have been fleeced out of $100,000 in gems in the last few weeks by a plausible stranger from Russia, it was disclosed today. Michael C. Towns, one of the five, who admitted a costly error in judgment, said the man had come to him as a salesman, with apparently unsalable pieces, and beginning in a small way to take out gems to sell on commission, had built up a good credit. Meanwhile, he was building up credit at the other firms in the same way, pawing some of the jewels in order to pay the owners of the other gems he represented as having been sold.

When he pyramided his credit to $100,000 he dropped out of sight, and the jewelers and the police are still looking for him.

FAITHFUL DOG WATCHES OVER SLAIN MASTER

Anniston, Ala., July 3.—Guarded by his dog, the body of Buckle Wright, a molder, was found today in an open hole near his home. Wright's death was caused by a slash of throat and a charge of shot in the head, according to authorities who are searching for a man believed to have been with Wright last night.

Income Tax Expected to Be One of Principal Features of Plan to Be Submitted Thursday.

SEEKS CO-OPERATION WITH LEGISLATORS

Believes Absence of Factionalism Will Be Decided Asset in Disposing of Problems Facing State.

With all committees named and preliminary arrangements completed by both houses of the Georgia general assembly, Governor Clifford Walker is preparing to submit his message on the question of taxation to the lawmakers Thursday morning.

While the chief executive is expected to submit a concrete plan for a new system of taxation for the state, no authoritative information on the details of his proposal has been given out. Those in close association with him, however, stated Tuesday night that an income tax will be one of the recommendations to be submitted, while others also predicted a graduated tax for various properties, as suggested by Tax Commissioner Henry J. Fulbright, will be suggested in connection with the other method.

Wants Co-operation.

At the executive department, it was stated that Governor Walker was "anxious" to work in close co-operation with the legislators. The governor has been pleased with the manner in which the lawmakers have taken up their business this year, it was stated, and felt certain that the absence of factionalism would be a decided asset in disposing of important questions confronting the state.

Taxation is the one and chief question receiving the governor's greatest interest, it was stated, and he will submit his recommendations to the assembly after numerous conferences with leading business and professional men, bankers and farmers and after a long study of systems of taxation in other states. He has taken the position that the solution of what has been termed the tax problem of Georgia will make it possible to more easily solve other matters needing attention.

Recognized as Failure.

"The ad valorem system as now administered has broken down in Georgia as it has broken down in every other state," he declared in his inaugural address. "The general property tax is recognized as a failure by practically every tax expert for a number of reasons upon which there is general unanimity of opinion. I need here refer to only one—its failure to reach a rapidly increasing class of property, the intangible personal property—notes, accounts, mortgages, bonds and other credits."

In support of his position favoring the abolishment of the tax equalization act, Governor Walker has asserted that numerous defects have been pointed out in fights staged during past sessions of the assembly to repeal the measure. In three state elections, he has stated, the voters have expressed themselves in opposition to the act and the platform of principles adopted by the people in convention favors the change.

Governor Hardwick favored the abolition of the tax equalization law, but took the position a favorable substitute system would have to be provided before he would favor repeal of the original act. During the sessions of 1921-22, he fought efforts to repeal the act, because, in his opinion, no suitable substitute had been provided.

Legislators express the opinion that when Governor Walker submits his final system of taxation, it will be more like North Carolina's plan than that of any other state in the south.

Municipal Market Work to Be Started Soon, Says Col. Peel

Construction work on the municipal market on Edgewood avenue should begin within a few weeks, according to Colonel W. L. Peel, president of the market, who announced Tuesday that the contract had been awarded to E. A. Stuhmann, local engineer.

The contract involves approximately $150,000, the amount of the bond issue for the market.

Both Games Today Will Be Broadcast By The Constitution

Station WGM, The Atlanta Constitution, today will broadcast both of the baseball games to be played at the Ponce De Leon park.

The first of the two games between the Atlanta Crackers and the New Orleans Pelis, will start at 10 o'clock in the morning and will be detailed until noon. The second game, starting at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, will be detailed until 4 o'clock.

CHARTER CHANGES ASKED BY COUNCIL READY FOR HOUSE

Schedule, Favored by Administration, Submitted to the Fulton County Delegation in Legislature.

RIGHT TO ESTABLISH COAL YARDS ASKED

Pay Ward at Grady, Changes in Pension Laws and Right to Control City Elections Urged.

The new administration's schedule of charter amendments, duly approved and recommended by general council for passage by the general assembly, was submitted Tuesday to Fulton county's delegation in the assembly and probably will be introduced Thursday, it was announced Tuesday afternoon by Mayor Walter A. Sims. Practically all are aimed to increase revenue and reduce expenses.

The amendments permit for a pay ward in Grady hospital; assessment of property owners for sewer extensions; designation of five, instead of four, banks for city depositories; creating municipal coal yards; putting control of city elections under mayor and general council; charging fees for building permits; abolishment of the street improvement fund; and rigidly restricting the pension privilege.

Gives Council Power.

The charter amendments do not provide for the changes specified, but simply empower council to pass ordinances to effect the changes, under definite restrictions.

The Grady hospital amendment requires that service to pay and to charity patients shall be the same and that service to pay patients shall not conflict with that afforded free patients.

The sewer assessment amendment denies property owners the option of sewer extensions and provides that extensions shall be made "at established intervals" and empowers council to make and collect assessments to pay for them.

The municipal coal yard amendment gives council a free hand to build and maintain such yards and to sell coal under whatever provisions it makes, with or without profit.

Change in Elections.

City elections are placed under full control of mayor and council by divorcing the offices of tax collector of Fulton county and of city registrar, empowering council to designate and compensate anyone it selects as registrar, to make rules and regulations for registering voters as it sees fit.

Fees for building permits are fixed by the amendment at $100 per thousand of estimated value up to $10,000, fifty cents for each additional thousand, up to $25,000, and twenty-five cents for each additional thousand, provided that no fee shall be more than $25 for a single permit.

Under the charter amendment approved August 9, 1919, the city is required to set aside one-tenth of the total estimated cost of improving any street, this tenth to be used as a "street improvement fund." The amendment cancels this requirement.

Pension Amendments.

The pension amendment, which is in three sections, provides for pensioning at $50 a month the widow of any policeman or fireman killed in line of duty during her life or widowhood, provided she does not own more than $10,000 worth of property. Orphans of policemen or firemen would receive $20 each per month up to the amount of $50 for an entire family, provided they did not inherit as much as $10,000 from either mother or father.

No city employee is to be entitled to a pension because of disability or injury received in service. Pensions for 20 or 35 years service are limited to a maximum of $60 per month, regardless of salary while in service, instead of $100 per month, and employees whose salaries were less than $100 per month will receive as pension one-half of the amount of the salary.

Policemen, firemen and school teachers are to be the only employees of the city eligible to receive pensions, all others being excluded.

NEVADA DRY LAW FOUND ILLEGAL

Decision of Supreme Court Outlaws Dry Enforcement of State of Nevada on Technicality.

Carson City, Nev., July 3.—The Nevada state dry law was found unconstitutional here Tuesday by the state supreme court.

The state dry act adopted the Volstead act in full, and not by sections, as a state law. The court decided the title did not cover the subject matter, and consequently returned a decision outlawing state dry law enforcement in Nevada.

HARDING HONORS PIONEER SPIRIT OF TRAIL-BLAZERS

President Pays Homage to Founders of Oregon Trail and Men Who Saved Northwest.

Meacham, Ore., July 3.—President Harding stopped here today on his western trip to pay homage to the memory of the sturdy pioneers who founded Oregon and saved to the nation the great northwest.

Speaking at exercises commemorating the eightieth anniversary of the blazing of the Oregon trail, the executive declared the American people owe to those pioneers a debt of gratitude which they never can repay. Their victory, he asserted, proclaimed the strength of resolute purpose to do for themselves, not asking the government to do, but for government only to sanction or permit.

"We may reasonably do more today," he said, "than rejoice in possession of the imperial domain which they revealed, and the life they made possible to the virile, aspiring and confident northwest. I find new assurances in recalling the heroism, the resolution, the will to conquer of these pioneers."

"I wish I might more effectively visualize them. Not very long ago I saw the covered wagon in the moving pictures. I sat entranced. There was more than the picturesque, more than sorrow and discouragement, more than appealing characters and enthralling heroism. There was more than the revelation of the irresolute, who failed in fitness to survive, more than tragedy and comedy in their separate blend. There was more than the exultation which surpassed our fancies, more than nature's relentless barriers revealed. Everywhere aflame was the soul of unalterable purpose and the commanding sturdiness of elemental greatness. Still more, there was determination to do themselves, not asking the government to do, but for government only to sanction or permit."

Spirit of Pioneers.
"Much the same spirit was revealed in the making of the central west, where the determined pioneers built in the confidence which they had in themselves. They battled with nature and every obstacle which they encountered, heroes perished without fame's acclaim, and they conquered and wrote big their part in the making of the greater republic. Their victory proclaimed the strength of resolute purpose, and the human genius, confidence in itself and eager to achieve on its own account."

"The lesson can't fail to impress itself. In this test of self-reliance, citizenship there came the rugged, militant, wholesome west. Greater things were wrought, larger accomplishment was recorded, greater victory was won in this wholesome, inspiring individualism than will ever attend paternalism or government assistance."

Why the Weather?

DR. CHARLES F. BROOKS, Secretary American Meteorological Society, Describes:

Rain Insurance.

Scientific weather observations have come to be an essential element in business in many ways, including warnings of frosts, rains and floods, and storms which threaten shipping. One of the latest aspects of their usefulness is in connection with rain insurance. Companies now undertake to insure against loss by rain due to the interruption of outdoor events, such as athletic games and agricultural fairs. The referee is the weather observer. The criterion as to whether rain does or does not inflict loss is usually specified as a fall of one-tenth of an inch during a particular period of hours set by the insurer. If less falls the insurance company wins; if one-tenth inch or more, the insured receives the amount of the policy. The rain gauge of the observer is the arbiter.

Fight Fans Rushing to Shelby via Airplane, Fast Motor and Train in Effort to See Battle.

Airplanes to Carry Passengers to Fight

Chicago, July 3.—Delay in definite announcement as to whether the Dempsey-Gibbons fight would be held as scheduled has made necessary the utilization of aircraft to get the last-minute spectators, photographers and correspondents to Shelby, Mont., in time for the event Wednesday afternoon.

According to the aeronautical chamber of commerce, 21 special service stations, equipped with aviation gas and oil, have been established between Chicago and Shelby to facilitate transportation.

Cities fitted with new stations include Chicago, Joliet, Rockford, LaCrosse, Madison, Wis., Milwaukee, Winona, Minn., Minneapolis, Fargo, Valley City, N. D., Jamestown, N. D., Bismark, Williston, N. D., Miles City, Mont., Billings, Great Falls, Glasgow, Mont., Havre, Mont., and Shelby.

Shelby, Mont., July 3.—(By the Associated Press).—Agog with excitement and packed with surging crowds of fight fans, Shelby tonight was anxiously awaiting the great pugilistic event, which tomorrow will focus the eyes of the entire sport world on this little Montana cow town.

Assured of the title bout between Champion Jack Dempsey and Tommy Gibbons, after one of the most hectic and despairing financial battles ever waged by community-proud citizens in the history of pugilism, the residents of this crowded, conglomerate city of shacks, tents and concession stands, fight officials and trainers were drawing to a close the elaborate preparations which have been proceeding busily for the past three weeks.

Only a few details remained to be completed tonight. Apparently the least disturbed of any man in Shelby, Tom Gibbons, the St. Paul contender, romped with his three children in his little cottage, went for a short walk over the nearby hills in the afternoon and saw cow punchers and roughriders perform at a rodeo.

Stone Mountain's Side Is Pierced By 5,000 Holes

Five thousands holes have been drilled on the side of Stone mountain since the work was started on the great Confederate memorial on Monday by the executive committee of the Stone Mountain Confederate Monumental association.

During the present week the first block of granite will be removed in the shelf which must be cut above the figure of General Robert E. Lee. This will give the necessary relief to the huge figure, which cannot be carved on a flat surface.

Dynamite or other explosives cannot be used, cutting the shelf has to be done by cutting it out by drilling two rows of holes, one perpendicular and the other horizontal, and driving in dynamite into these holes to split the granite.

The holes are being made with pneumatic drills by men suspended in cages from the top of the cliff. At the end of steel cables operated on electric drums on the platform about two-thirds of the distance up the

CHANGES ORDERED IN JITNEY BONDS

Acceptance of the indemnity bonds proffered by 20 jitney operators Saturday was deferred by City Clerk Walter Taylor Tuesday until Thursday when changes will be made in the provisions of the bonds to make them conform with the city ordinance. Sam C. Schlesinger, president of the jitney association, stated that the changes will be made by the specified time.

The bonds, in their present form, relieve the insurance company of liability if the driver of the car at the time of an accident is under 16 years of age. Mr. Taylor demanded that the bonds be changed to enable any person injured by the insured jitney to recover for his damages regardless of the age of the driver.

"Jitney operators are of course expected to comply with the state law fixing 16 years as the minimum age for driving an automobile," Mr. Taylor said, "but it would be manifestly against the purpose of the ordinance to permit a violation of law by a jitney operator to prevent an injured person from recovering for his injuries."

The ordinance specifies that 15 days' notice be required before the bonds can be canceled, while the proffered bonds, in their present form, provide for 10 days' notice. This provision will be changed to conform with the ordinance.

The bonds, as presented Saturday, specified that they would not be binding on the insuring company unless its agent was authorized in writing to countersign the bond. Mr. Taylor instructed the agent to secure the proper legal authority before accepting the bond. Late Tuesday he received a telegram from the company, the Fidelity Union Casualty Company of Texas, notifying him that the company was forwarding the proper authorization by mail.

Jitneys will be permitted to operate as at present until Thursday. Then all properly bonded and licensed jitneys will be required to paint the name and license number of the operator on each side of the car and police action will be taken against all operators whose cars are not marked according to the ordinance.

Two Alleged Aides In Chapman Escape Get Delay in Trial

Dominick Didato and Abe Silverstein have secured further delay of the trial of conspiracy indictments against them which grew out of the recent escape of Gerald Chapman, federal penitentiary inmate, serving time for a million-dollar mail robbery in New York city.

It was stated at the federal building Tuesday that the two men probably would not be placed on trial until October. They will face a United States jury in the Athens division of the district court when the cases are called.

ARTHUR BROOKE NOW HEADS KIWANIS CLUB

Arthur L. Brooke, prominent Atlanta business man, and civic leader, Tuesday assumed the presidency of the Kiwanis club, to which office he was elected by the board of directors to succeed J. Sherrard Kennedy, president since January, 1922, whose resignation was tendered, due to stress of private business.

Election of Mr. Brooke was not made known until Tuesday, when the club met for its weekly luncheon. After announcing to the membership that he had resigned, Mr. Kennedy requested George F. Eubanks and Walter Barnwell, the two immediate past presidents, to escort the new president to the chair.

In presenting the gavel to Mr. Brooke, the retiring president pledged to him his loyalty throughout his tenure of office.

Mr. Brooke is a member of the firm of T. H. Brooke & Co., wholesale grain and flour dealers, and is president of the Atlanta Chemical company, fertilizer manufacturers. Since becoming a member of the Kiwanis club about five years ago he has been one of its most active members, having held the office of vice president for the past several months.

As a member of the board of founders of Oglethorpe university, he has worked unceasingly in the interest of that institution. He is president of the men's Bible class at Druid Hills Methodist church, of which Judge John S. Candler is teacher, and devotes much time and energy to religious activities.

Mr. Brooke is a member of the executive committee of the Southeastern Fair association, his particular work being the supervision of the cattle exhibits and awards and other duties pertaining to the live stock show.

The retiring president, J. Sherrard Kennedy, is vice president of the Atlanta National bank. After serving as president in 1922, he was re-elected and accepted the place after much hesitancy. It was under his guidance that the local club recently entertained the international Kiwanis convention, which assembled more than 5,000 guests here.

30 Conventions Expected to Bring 60,000 Visitors

Thirty conventions estimated to bring 60,000 visitors here have been booked for the remainder of the year, it was announced by the Atlanta convention bureau Tuesday. After having brought 173 conventions here this season to date and 44,000 delegates are said to have been included in these invasions.

"Fifty thousand letters and descriptive booklets have been mailed in an effort to bring summer visitors here during July, August and September," stated Secretary Fred Houser, of the convention bureau. "Large national and international organizations have been entertained during the past few months and these have spread the fame of Atlanta to all corners of the continent."

Secretary Houser declares that he is in receipt of a letter from the National Association of Credit Men, which convened here recently, which pays a glowing tribute to Atlanta and Atlantans for the reception given the visitors.

New members of the bureau are: L. S. Gilbert, C. F. Mann, John T. North, A. A. Lavigne, A. Shewartz, J. J. Spiller, L. O. Sures, C. D. McGill, Jake Abelson and Norman Wrigley.

The following conventions have been booked for the remainder of the year and for future dates:

FLEMING TO OPPOSE PARK FOR CONGRES

Dennis Fleming, former state senator from the tenth district, last night stated that he would be a candidate for United States representative from the second congressional district in the democratic primary of next year, opposing Congressman Frank Park.

While in the senate in 1921 and 1922, Mr. Fleming announced his intention of running for congress, but his statement Tuesday night was his first definite announcement on the subject. His formal announcement will not be issued until early next year, he asserted, adding, however, that he already has been actively at work in his district and intends to launch a "spirited campaign" as soon as advisable.

Mr. Fleming was one of the two traveling men in the senate during his term. He has served as national president of the Traveling Men's Social and Protective association, and also as head of the Travelers Protective association.

After similar measures had met defeat in a number of past sessions, Mr. Fleming drafted a bill to make the reading of the Bible in public schools of Georgia compulsory, and carefully guided its course through both houses of the general assembly to success.

Mr. Fleming has made his home at Albany, Dougherty county, for 39 years.

The Fourth's Meaning to The Fourth

A Natural Sequence:

- I. The National Independence.
- II. The National Government.
- III. The National Bank System.

Today the heart of every American is stirred afresh by the patriotic significance of the Fourth of July.

The inspiration that The Fourth National Bank feels is made more keen by the fact that it is a National Bank, an integral part of the sound financial system for which the United States is noted—and that, operated in accordance with the national banking laws under the strict and wholesome supervision of the American government, it is privileged to extend to the people of its city and section all the safeguards that the government provides for the protection and security of their funds.

ALLEGED WHISKY CARS ARE SEIZED; DRIVERS JAILED

Two alleged whisky cars were wrecked early Tuesday morning by their drivers, who were placed under arrest charged with violating the prohibition law.

An automobile owned by Lloyd Rice, 21, of 258 Pulliam street, and containing two other men, was chased by Patrolmen Carroll and Harris on Stewart avenue. While trying to evade the officers, Rice ran his machine into a telephone pole. He was cut about the hands and considerable damage done to the car. His companions succeeded in escaping.

The same officers soon afterwards chased another car which was operated by W. B. Jones, 25, who gave his address as Alabama. Jones jumped from his car after driving several blocks and tried to escape on foot. He was overtaken. The automobile contained 50 gallons of whisky, the policeman said. Two other cars, each containing ten gallons of whisky, were captured by Patrolmen Roper and Denny. The drivers escaped.

DRIVER OF AUTO PAYS UNEXPECTED VISIT TO STORE

A. J. Holland paid an impromptu and most unexpected visit to Robinson's Furniture store, 25-27 Hunter street, Tuesday afternoon.

Losing control of his machine, which he was driving down the sharp incline in front of the store, he crashed into the display window. His car stopped upon a rug in the interior of the establishment. No one was injured. The damage was estimated at $500. No charge was made against the driver.

3-YEAR-OLD CHILD INJURED BY AUTO

Knoxville, Ga., July 3.—(Special.) While crossing the street Monday, Marion, the little three-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Barnes, of Musella, was struck by an automobile driven by Lucius Fuller, of Culliden. The car was going at a high rate of speed, fracturing the child's skull. He was immediately carried to the Meacon hospital.

$1,540,000,000

The
Railroads Have Shown
Confidence in the Fairness of the Public

The railroads of this Country have recently expended or authorized for improvements sums aggregating $1,540,000,000. This is equivalent to an average of approximately $6,600 per mile. During the twelve months, ending May 1, 1923, the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company has expended and authorized a total of $52,486,510—equivalent to an average of $10,411 per mile. Approximately $43,000,000 of this amount represents improvements in active process of construction, that will be completed at the earliest practicable moment.

These enormous expenditures have not been justified by the interest the roads have realized on their investments. In fact, since the end of Federal control, the rate of return on the value of all railroad property in the United States devoted to transportation, as determined by the Interstate Commerce Commission, has averaged about 2.64 per cent—the L. & N. average during this same period was only 2.33 per cent.

In spite of that fact, these expenditures are being made in order to build up the transportation plant, which has admittedly become inadequate to care for the increased business of the Nation.

This large investment is being made in a spirit of confidence in the absolute fairness of the American Public, as expressed through the use of their legislative powers, in maintaining a policy of regulation which will permit the railroads to earn a reasonable margin of profit on their investment.

It would indeed be disastrous for the railroads, as well as for the Country, if, through the ranting of demagogue politicians, the people should become confused on the real facts and remove the supports from under their transportation utilities through the enactment of radical and destructive laws.

terstate, in the hands of the federal interstate commerce commission. Another resolution was introduced by Bannister, of Thomas, calling for an investigation of the state department of agriculture. The resolution declares that the federal department of agriculture has severed relations with the state department for several years past and asserts that the department has been of little or no use to the farmers of the state in recent years. Officials at the department, Tuesday afternoon, declared that the charge that relations between the federal government and their department were severed was incorrect, stating that they were cooperating with the federal agencies in five different branches of their work today.

May Be Thrown Out. Since this resolution provides that Charles S. Barrett, president of the Farmers' union, and President J. D. Weaver, of the State Farmers' union, be appointed on the investigatory committee, neither of whom is a member of the legislature, many members believe it will be ruled unconstitutional. Another resolution, calling for an investigation, introduced Tuesday, was for a probe into the bookkeeping department of the state highway department. Its sponsor was Representative Beck, of Carroll, and the resolution charges that there are glaring inaccuracies in the annual report of the department. Original plans to devote Wednesday to a memorial in honor of the late United States senator, Thomas E. Watson, were postponed to some future date when the committee in charge found that it would be impossible for relatives of Mr. Watson to be present Wednesday and also that important speakers who, it was hoped, would take part in these exercises, were out of the city. Both senators from Georgia, William J. Harris, and Walter F. George, found it impossible to be present Wednesday.

Ask Copeland to Speak. Dr. Royal S. Copeland, United States senator from New York, is expected in Atlanta, shortly, it was announced and a resolution was passed extending to him the privileges of the floor and inviting him to address the general assembly while here. It was introduced by Moore, of Appling. Notice was read that the management of the Kettel hall extended an invitation to all committees to hold their sessions at the hotel, whenever more convenient, and that rooms for such meetings would be assigned on request from the chairman of the committee. Representative Kempton, of Fulton, announced that courtesy cards, provided by the city of Atlanta for the legislators while in the city, and giving them passes to the motion picture theaters, baseball park, and other amusements, would be ready for distribution Thursday.

It is expected that the different committees will quickly organize for business and by Thursday, when the assembly convenes after the holiday, the hard grind of work will begin. Committee meetings will be held immediately after convening and the grist of measures already introduced will begin to flow through the committee hoppers and back to the main body for final action.

sumption of the tasks which are the natural inheritance of the builders who may better serve for themselves. Government may well provide opportunity, but the worthwhile accomplishment is the privilege and the duty of men. "Apart from the tragedy of it all, I am glad Russia is making the experiment. If twenty centuries of the Christian era and its great stories of human progress, and the countless centuries before the light of Christianity flamed, have been lived and recorded upon mistaken theories of a righteous social order, then everything is wrong, Christianity is a failure, and all of civilization a failure. I think Russia is going to rivet anew our belief in established social order. Meanwhile we know ours is the best of the world has revealed, and I preach the gospel of holding fast to that which has proven good, ever trying in good conscience to make it better, and consider and treat as an enemy every man who chooses out and as a haven in which to assail the very institutions which shelter him."

find much satisfaction in the good fortunes of families who, when they are able to do it, prefer to take their children out of the public schools and give them the doubtful advantage of more exclusive educational methods. I think we should cling to the democracy of the public schools.

"In the home must still be performed the duty of instilling into the child those fundamental concepts of religion and of faith which are essential to rightly shaping the character of citizens, and therefore of the nation. Mankind never has stood more in need than it does now of the consolations and reassurances which derive from a firm religious faith. We are living in a time of many uncertainties, of weakened faith in the efficiency of institutions, of industrial systems, of economic hypotheses, of dictum and dogma in whatever sphere. Yet we all know that there are certain fundamental truths of life and duty and destiny which will stand eternal, through the evolution and the revolution of systems and societies founded by mankind. There must be no mistake whereby we shall confuse the things which are of eternity with those which are of time."

which Americans generally have for the British people. Combination of Events. Possibly the reason for this acerbity of British comment about British people held up at Ellis Island is that this incident comes up at the same time as the prohibition of America of liquor on British ships in New York harbor. The feeling engendered out of the latter event spreads over the other. Another reason, applying to both these incidents, is the jealousy which every British citizen feels about individual rights, a jealousy born of past centuries of conflict with kings. A jealousy for personal rights greater than we are conscious of in America. And associated with it all is that common practice of the newspapers, accurately reflecting human nature, which records the unusual and permits the usual to pass unnoticed. The proportion between the 77,334 British who entered America comfortably in the routine way and the eight who were subjected to inconvenience probably is not far from the common ratio of the usual to the unusual, which gets into the newspapers.

As to immigration in the broad sense, no thoughtful American can visit Europe without being reinforced in his conviction that the instance was sound which caused our people, expressing themselves through congress, to put limits on the number of immigrants we are willing to receive. Further than this, such an American is sure to conclude, after even a superficial comparison of the migration at its source, that we shall be wise still further to strengthen our immigration restriction laws; and to elaborate it with careful details, looking to yet greater emphasis on quality.

English Most Desirable. For example, the immigrants we get from Great Britain are the most desirable that we can get from any country. There can be no doubt that America's uneasy concern about immigration was not caused in any degree whatever by that which comes from Great Britain. If all our immigration had come from Great Britain our anti-immigration at home would have never arisen and our immigration restriction law would never have been passed.

And yet it is a fact—a fact which I think will come to most Americans with surprise—that immigration we get from Great Britain is skinned milk. It is not the best immigration that Great Britain has to offer and it is not the best that actually goes out of Great Britain. For saying this I have the best and most earnest authority. The cream is taken out of the emigration

A large part of Mr. Harding's address was devoted to a discussion of the change in the relation of women to the social and political organization. The president said he was one of those "old-fashioned" people who would be glad if the way could be found to maintain the traditional relations of father, mother, children and home, but that very plainly these relations are in process of a "great modification."

"The most we can do, to the utmost possible extent," he said, "is to adapt our conditions of industry and of living so as to enable the mothers to make the utmost of their lessened opportunity for shaping the lives and minds of their children. We must hope, and we must make it possible, that mothers will not assume, when their babies of yesterday become the schoolboys and schoolgirls of today, that the responsibility of the mother is ended, and that the teacher, the school authorities, the college, the state, will henceforth assume it. The mothers must be placed in such position that despite their obligations outside the home they shall not have to surrender their domestic responsibility. Rather, they must be found to enable them, through the varied instrumentalities which society affords, to equip themselves for the better discharge of their responsibility toward the children of the land."

Public School System. "The mother who tirelessly seeks rightly to train her children, to instill into them that indefinable essence which we know as good breeding, will be performing the service not alone for her own children, but in only less measure for the children who come from homes less blessed with the finer things of life. Herein is the supreme advantage of the public school system. I have never been able to from Great Britain before America gets it. The best emigrants from Great Britain are sent to Australia, to Canada, and other colonies. It is what is left that comes to the United States. Australia, together with some of the other British dominions, and the home government of Great Britain itself, have government departments for selecting and sending the best of the British immigrants to Australia, Canada and other British dominions.

Money Question Prominent. In addition to the intelligent selection which is practiced by agencies of the British and dominion governments, it is further a fact, interest in the situation, that an emigrant who has saved up or can otherwise command enough money to go to Australia is a better man than the one whose necessities lead him to take the shortest trip.

Also Australia and Canada take experienced farmers, who, it is well known, are better material for citizenship than the factory workers and the like which America gets. There is still much more information to be acquired, much more care to be exercised and more careful administrative machinery to be devised by the United States before we shall have put our mechanism for the reception of immigrants into the best shape.

All peoples, and Americans most of all, are subject to the obsessions and delusions of words and phrases. Twenty years ago a European writer, named Israel Zangwill, speaking of America as the destination of emigrants from Europe, used the phrase "the melting pot." For two decades that phrase has thrown a sentimental and idealistic glamour about immigration. One wishes that some good American writer, twenty years ago, had had the inspiration to think of some more truthful phrase, applicable to America as the receptacle of some (though of course, not all) of the immigrants who have been coming to us—some such phrase, as, let us say, "the cess-pool."

Man Buried Alive Under Avalanche When Wall Falls
Buried alive under a great mass of soil and debris Tuesday afternoon when a dirt wall of an excavation at the site of the Atlanta-Biltmore hotel, now under construction in West Peachtree street fell, Robert Glenn, a negro workman, of 16 Chestnut street, miraculously escaped death. An ambulance from Grady hospital was rushed to the scene, where physicians administered first-aid treatment. He was then taken to Mercy hospital, where, authorities stated, his wounds were of a serious nature, but that in all probability he would survive.

Glenn was engaged in excavating for the foundation of the hotel. Twenty feet below the surface of the dirt thirty-five feet in height. Ignorant of his peril he failed to see the crumbling edges at the top of the opening and he was caught coming to a warning the entire side gave way and a slithering avalanche of dirt swept down upon him.

Witnesses declared that the huge pile of dirt buried Glenn several feet deep. Others who were working in the same part of the excavation escaped uninjured.

Huntsville, Ala., July 3.—Three children of Herbert Whitworth, one, two, and four years old, were burned to death in a fire that destroyed the family home near Meridianville last night. McCord's Bulletin
The Ninety and Nine

Only 1 per cent of the children of school age are in college; it is our business to see that more attention is given to the remaining 99 per cent.
M. M. PARKS,
Retiring State Supt. of Schools.

He shows that of 200 who enter the first grade of public schools only 26 reach the high school, six graduate from it, three enter college and one graduates there.

"The losses in the primary and elementary grades are appalling," says he. "Start the child right and he can help himself, but start him wrong and his future is not promising."

Hon. H. J. Fullbright, State Tax Commissioner, says the repeal of the tax equalization law will reduce the State's income at least a million dollars and if this loss is not made good somehow it will shorten the term of country schools from six to three months.

This at a time when people are leaving the farms by tens and hundreds of thousands is about the worst thing that could happen.

Let us hope the legislature will make sure of ample revenue from some source to provide good schools for the country districts.

NAME COMMITTEE TO HONOR WATSON

Appointment of Senator Duke, of the 28th district, and Senator Stovall, of the 27th, as members of a joint committee to devise memorial resolutions and a program in honor of the late Senator Thomas E. Watson, was announced by President George Carswell, Tuesday.

The committee will arrange a program to be presented at the hall of the house of representatives at an early date, with prominent speakers and friends of the late senator delivering addresses. Members of Senator Watson's family also will be present at the exercises.

It was the plan of the committee to hold the exercises Wednesday, but owing to lack of time in which to prepare the program and inability of Senator Watson's two grand-daughters to be present, it was decided to hold the exercises later.

After a brief session Tuesday the senate, along with the house adjourned until 11:30 o'clock Thursday morning in observance of Independence day.

Immigration Commissioner. A bill providing for designating the commissioner of commerce and labor as ex-officio commissioner of immigration and creating the position of assistant commissioner at a salary of $2,000 per year, was submitted to the senate by Senator Spence, of the Eighth district, Tuesday. It was referred to the committee on commerce and labor.

Another bill introduced by Senator Spence provides that persons engaged in the money lending business be prepared to pay interest on loans less than $300, and prohibiting them from taking out the amount of interest in advance.

Senator Dukes, of the Twenty-eighth district, introduced a bill in the senate providing an amendment of the motor vehicle act empowering sheriffs to pass on applications for licenses after March 1 of each year and to collect a fee of $1 for their services.

PRETTY WEATHER
READY FOR CITY
ON JULY FOURTH

No obstacles will be placed in the way by nature to prevent the Fourth of July from being a genuine glorious holiday. Cool breezes, moderate temperature and no rain, was the encouraging forecast made Tuesday afternoon by C. F. von Hermann, of the Atlanta weather bureau.

"The breezes on Wednesday will be off-shore instead of inland," stated Mr. von Hermann. "Monday's heavy rainfall is still making its influence felt. We were on the way to have a rather warm spell, but the rain cooled things off and the temperature ideal for the celebration of the national holiday."

Fred Dorn, 12 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Dorn, of 56 Lucile avenue, was taken to Grady hospital Tuesday afternoon in a serious condition, after he had been knocked down and run over by a heavy touring car, on Georgia avenue near Washington street. It is feared that he received internal injuries. Mrs. Dorothy Montgomery, of 374 Capital avenue, driver of the car, collapsed after she had brought her machine to a stop.

An autoist, who was passing at the time, placed the boy in his machine and rushed him to the hospital. Mrs. Montgomery, upon recovering drove to police station and reported the incident to authorities. She is being held at police station without bond pending the outcome of the boy's injuries.

Postpone Meeting. The regular meeting of the Atlanta Truth center, scheduled for today, will be held Thursday morning at 11 o'clock and the same afternoon at 6 o'clock at Carnegie library. The reason for the postponement is because of the fact that the library is closed today.

Total weight of an engine and tender, largest of its type ever built, was 14,600 pounds.

SEVEN COUNTIES
ASK BABY CLINIC

Seven Georgia communities are strongly bidding for the demonstration center which the American Child Health association will establish in the south. It was learned Tuesday from Dr. T. F. Abernethy, of the state board of health, that Cobb county is the latest to enter the field. The Georgia communities already enlisted in the contest for the center being DeKalb county, Baldwin county, Washington county, Wilkes county, Telfair county and the city of Athens.

Cobb Asks Atlanta's Aid. Cobb county entered her bid through the Marietta Chamber of Commerce which Tuesday asked co-operation of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce. This city and county being too large in point of population to be eligible for the demonstration. Eleven southern states, with 33 communities, are contending for the center, which will be established and supported for five years by the National Child Health association. The demonstration consists of a baby clinic, a mothers' clinic, a training school for mothers and workers and a great educational campaign for better care of babies.

A considerable sum of money is involved in establishment of a demonstration, it is said, one having already been established in the northwest at Fargo, N. D.

Maintain Five Years. They explained that the association planned to establish the baby health demonstration at some southern point and maintain it for five years, after which the community would be expected to support it.

The Marietta Chamber of Commerce delegation, which entered the bid of Cobb county, Tuesday called at the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce and was assured of the support of the local organization in its fight.

"The southern child health demonstration will be a tremendous thing for the community in which it is located," Dr. Abernethy stated, "and a great thing for the entire state. It will serve to center attention upon better training and methods in the upbringing of babies, and I shall do all in my power to secure it for some Georgia community."

NAME COMMITTEE TO HONOR WATSON

Appointment of Senator Duke, of the 28th district, and Senator Stovall, of the 27th, as members of a joint committee to devise memorial resolutions and a program in honor of the late Senator Thomas E. Watson, was announced by President George Carswell, Tuesday.

The committee will arrange a program to be presented at the hall of the house of representatives at an early date, with prominent speakers and friends of the late senator delivering addresses. Members of Senator Watson's family also will be present at the exercises.

It was the plan of the committee to hold the exercises Wednesday, but owing to lack of time in which to prepare the program and inability of Senator Watson's two grand-daughters to be present, it was decided to hold the exercises later.

After a brief session Tuesday the senate, along with the house adjourned until 11:30 o'clock Thursday morning in observance of Independence day.

Immigration Commissioner. A bill providing for designating the commissioner of commerce and labor as ex-officio commissioner of immigration and creating the position of assistant commissioner at a salary of $2,000 per year, was submitted to the senate by Senator Spence, of the Eighth district, Tuesday. It was referred to the committee on commerce and labor.

Another bill introduced by Senator Spence provides that persons engaged in the money lending business be prepared to pay interest on loans less than $300, and prohibiting them from taking out the amount of interest in advance.

Senator Dukes, of the Twenty-eighth district, introduced a bill in the senate providing an amendment of the motor vehicle act empowering sheriffs to pass on applications for licenses after March 1 of each year and to collect a fee of $1 for their services.

PRETTY WEATHER
READY FOR CITY
ON JULY FOURTH

No obstacles will be placed in the way by nature to prevent the Fourth of July from being a genuine glorious holiday. Cool breezes, moderate temperature and no rain, was the encouraging forecast made Tuesday afternoon by C. F. von Hermann, of the Atlanta weather bureau.

"The breezes on Wednesday will be off-shore instead of inland," stated Mr. von Hermann. "Monday's heavy rainfall is still making its influence felt. We were on the way to have a rather warm spell, but the rain cooled things off and the temperature ideal for the celebration of the national holiday."

Miss Mae Parker Is Married To George Adair Eckford

Dublin, Ga., July 3.—George Adair Eckford, formerly of Atlanta, was married to Miss Mae Parker at noon Tuesday. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. G. Logan, of Newnan, at his home in Newnan and was witnessed only by the closest friends.

Mr. Eckford is the grandson of the late Col. George W. Adair, and the nephew of Mrs. Annie Adair Foster, of Atlanta. He is also a cousin of the Georgia golf player, Perry Adair. Miss Parker is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Parker, of Millen, Ga. She is a graduate of Bessie Tift college, and is widely known throughout the state.

Mr. Eckford's best man was Victor Morse Graves.

Miss Hardy Will Be Honored At Series of Social Affairs

Miss Siello Pickett Hardy, of Batesville, Ark., will arrive in Atlanta Thursday morning to visit Mrs. Joseph Madison High at her home on West Fifteenth street, and she will be entertained at a series of social affairs during her stay in Atlanta.

Mrs. High's informal luncheon Thursday will be in compliment to Miss Hardy, and will assemble a group of Atlanta women who attended the D. A. R. Continental congress in Washington, D. C., in April and met this distinguished visitor at that time.

On Friday Mrs. Charles A. Davis will give a luncheon in honor of Miss Hardy at her home on Peachtree street, and she will be the central figure at the tea at which Mrs. J. O. Wynn will entertain on Friday afternoon at her home on Peachtree Circle.

The Atlanta chapter, D. A. R., will entertain in her honor at a tea Saturday afternoon, July 7, from 5 to 6 o'clock, at Craig House, 100 Piedmont avenue.

Mrs. Charles Rice will be hostess at a tea at the Atlanta Woman's club on Monday afternoon, July 9, for Miss Hardy, which will be followed by a motor trip to Stone mountain.

Miss Hardy will again be the guest of honor at a tea given by Mrs. William L. Barnes, Tuesday afternoon, July 10, at her home on Piedmont avenue.

Miss Hardy is a national genealogist and is a woman of unusual mental attainment and personal charm.

Miss Randall Weds
Mr. Branch, June 20.

Mrs. Roland Pink Randall announces the marriage of her daughter, Elvora Eugenia, to Thomas Branch, Wednesday, June 20, at 20, Mr. and Mrs. Branch are now at home at 37 Coodee avenue.

Beautiful Tea
For Miss Maddox.

Miss Ruth Maddox, of Rome, Ga., the fete guest of Miss Emily McPhail was the honor guest at a beautiful afternoon tea given by Miss Gladys Neal Tuesday afternoon at her home on Ponce de Leon avenue.

Gladioli and other summer flowers were used in artistic arrangement in the spacious reception rooms where the guests were received.

In the dining room the tea table was overlaid with a lace cloth and held in the center a silver basket of gladioli, snapdragons and other summer flowers.

There were silver candelabra holding pink unshaded tapers.

Receiving with Miss Neal and Miss Maddox were Mrs. L. G. Neal, mother of the hostess, Mrs. M. E. Sherman, of Dothan, Ala., and Miss McPhail.

Miss Neal's gown was of cream lace.

Mrs. Neal's costume was of yellow chiffon.

Miss McPhail wore a pretty gown of blue chiffon.

Miss Sherman wore pink georgette. Assisting in the entertainment of the guests were Miss Helen Holtz, Miss Dorothy Adams, Miss Virginia Brittain, Miss Mildred Neeson, Miss Mary Jernigan, Miss Mildred Garner, Mrs. D. A. Ritch, Mrs. Earl Neal and Mrs. Dean Christopher.

Voice Pupils
Give Recital.

The program will be by the Misses Winifred Bird, Annie Barton, Minnie Clower, Leila Elder, Lois Manning, Lolita Paul, Howard Paulkner and Edward Odio. The public is invited.

Georgia Scenes
In Art Exhibit.

The work of Floyd Knight, which has won him a host of admirers in Atlanta during the past few years in which his pictures of North Georgia have been shown here, is represented in a small but select exhibition during the present week at the John L. Moore galleries on Peachtree street.

The group of pastels which make up the exhibit, while lacking the numbers shown in his last one-man show last fall at the chamber of commerce, give a fine idea of the range and beauty of his work. They are all glimpses of that country lying north-west of Gainesville, where mountain brooks leap down a thousand valleys, or the placid lakes mirror back the encircling mountains.

Mr. Knight's heart is in the land of Habersham, and his brush rarely strays to other fields.

He is preoccupied with atmospheric effects, with the mists that are drawn up by the early morning sun, or the violet haze which clothes the further hills on a warm day. He translates to his audience the subtle tones which cause sharp outlines to merge and blend where the further hills meet the horizon; and he is more concerned with catching and holding some elusive wisp of beauty as it escapes through the background of trees and shrubbery than he is in presenting the stark reality of an immediate foreground.

His recently completed canvas called "Spring" will illustrate this. The youngest of the seasons is portrayed in a mountain forest, massive trees rising around her. She is represented as the conventional maiden but the artist makes the figure so much a part of the warm mist that rises from the background that one is led to believe that nymph is not so much the spirit of the trees, as the Greeks so often pictured her, but was an exhalation of warm earth reclaimed from the rigors of winter.

Perhaps the most striking of all the canvases is the smallest. This is the portrait of a forest monarch left alone in a clearing after all his stalwart brethren have fallen beneath the settlers' ax. The painter's love for trees is instinctive, and he has lavished on this single subject all the wealth of his love and the resources of his technique. "The forest monarch" is a living tree, bathed in sunlight and glad of its existence.

Other notable pictures in the exhibit are "The Old Mill, Roque River," highly pictorial in quality; "To the Land of Heart's Desire," a marvelous view of a mountain pass done in warm and glowing colors; "Tray Mountain," a glimpse of a mountain range seen at a distance, and three pictures of Burton lake, two revealing the water at dawn and the other wrapped in evening shadows.

Stocks-Seiz Wedding Takes Place Monday

The wedding of Miss Willie Louise Stocks to Emil Charles Seiz, Jr., was solemnized Monday night at the home of the bride, Villa Rosa, on Piedmont road, the Rev. Dr. Stevenson, of the Peachtree Road Presbyterian church, officiating. Only the immediate families were present.

The beautiful home was artistically decorated throughout with roses, palms and ferns. Before the ceremony, "I Love You Truly" and "At Dawning" were softly rendered.

The bride entered with her uncle, Gerald G. Hannah, who gave her in marriage. She was a picture of girlish loveliness in a smart fall costume of midnight blue canteen crepe with a becoming hat to match. Completing the costume was a blue fox fur. Her corsage bouquet was of Ophelia roses showered with Swansonias.

The bride is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Stocks, and the granddaughter of the late F. M. Stocks, pioneer citizen of Atlanta. She is a beautiful and accomplished girl and has a charming personality.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Charles Seiz, and brother of Miss Ruth Seiz. He is a prominent young architect, being associated with his father and the Massell Realty company.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. Seiz and his bride left for an extended motor trip through the Blue Ridge mountains of North Carolina.

On their return they will reside with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Seiz, at their home, Rosedale, on Peachtree road, until they take possession of their apartment.

Al Fresco Dinner
At Lovely Home of
Mr. and Mrs. Gray

A beautiful and elaborate event, celebrating the host's birthday and complimenting two charming visitors, was the al fresco dinner at which Mr. and Mrs. Harold Gray entertained Tuesday evening at their newly new home on Andrews drive, the special honor guests being their visitors, Mrs. M. H. Parker and Mrs. A. L. Cammuck, of Dallas, Texas.

Soft, varicolored lights were hung at intervals along the sloping lawns and gardens. Beautiful natural foliage and shrubbery, alternating with French baskets of summer flowers from the host's garden, formed an attractive setting for the dinner table placed on the terrace.

The guests included Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Ottley, Dr. and Mrs. Guy J. Bostwick, and Mrs. Gallogly, Mrs. James R. Gray, Mr. and Mrs. James R. Gray, Jr., Major and Mrs. John S. Cohen, Mr. and Mrs. E. Rivers, and their guests, Mr. and Mrs. Estes, of Piedmont; Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Byrd, Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Brumby, of Marietta; Miss Mary Louise Brumby, of Marietta; Frank Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Inman Gray, Ed Randall, Jones Yow, John A. Brice, Jack Foster and Alfred Thompson.

Miss Alstaetter
Speaks at Meeting.

The Woman's Missionary society of Patti Memorial Methodist church held their regular social service meeting at the home of Mrs. R. E. White, 209 Mend road, Decatur, Thursday, June 28.

Mrs. White is chairman of this department.

Two distinguished guests present at the meeting were Mrs. J. H. Gibbs, former vice president of the Atlanta League of Women Voters, and Frederick Alstaetter, of Savannah, vice president of the State League of Women Voters and president of the Savannah League of Women Voters.

Mrs. Alstaetter spoke on the legislative program of the league. This program includes the passage of the woman's industry bill now before the legislature, the enforcement of public health laws and the proper care of the feeble-minded in the state.

Mrs. J. O. Brand, the president of the society, brought a few items of business before the society, after which a delicious ice course was served.

"---Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness"

—In celebration of the declaration of these "inalienable rights" one hundred and forty-seven years ago, we close our doors today, and in order that most of the American people, whether in the United States, or living, or traveling in any quarter of the globe, will devote the day to glorifying in their own manner, the Birthday of the Nation's freedom.

—Let everyone who today enjoys the privilege of American citizenship—as well as all who some day hope to share that citizenship with us—hang out the Stars and Stripes today, and vow a renewed allegiance to that beloved emblem before we go out to the pleasures of the day.

The HOUSEHOLD

Edited by Anne Rittenhouse

PICKLED VEGETABLES.

You can pickle many vegetables, if you have a family with a taste for them. And the comforting thing is that you need not wait until late autumn, as is necessary in making so many pickles, for instance, you can pickle whenever these vegetables are plentiful. And by doing them early you lighten your pickling burden of the late autumn.

To Pickle Tomatoes—Take the round, smooth green tomatoes, put them in salt and water, cover the vessel and put them over the fire to scald; that is, to let the water become boiling hot; then set the kettle off; take them from the pot into a basin of cold water; to enough cold vinegar to cover them put whole pepper and mustard seed; when the tomatoes are cold, take them from the water, cut each in two across, shake out the seeds and wipe the inside dry with a cloth, then put them into glass jars, and cover with the vinegar; cover with a close-fitting tin cover.

Pickled Cucumbers—Wash and dry six hundred small cucumbers and two quarts of peppers. Put them in a tub with one and a half cups of salt and a piece of alum as large as an egg. Heat to the boiling point three gallons of cider vinegar and three pints of water. Add a quarter of a pound each of whole cloves, whole allspice and stick cinnamon, and two ounces of white mustard seed, and pour over the pickles.

To Pickle Onions—Peel the onions until they are as white as snow, cut in strong salt and water, then take them up with a skimmer; make vinegar enough to cover them; boiling hot; strain over the onions whole pepper and white mustard seed. The best sort of vinegar over to cover them; when cold, put them in wide-mouthed bottles, and cork them close. A tablespoon of sweet oil may be put in the bottles before the cork is put in. The onions for pickling are the small white buttons.

Pickled Cauliflower—Two cauliflowers, cut up; one of small onions, three medium-sized red peppers. Dissolve a pint of salt in water enough to cover the vegetables, and let these stand over night. In the morning drain them. Heat two quarts of vinegar with four tablespoons of mustard, until it boils. Add the vegetables, and boil for about fifteen minutes, or until a fork can be thrust through the cauliflower.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

A Big Help.

A little kerosene in the water when washing linoleum will loosen the dirt wonderfully and make this arduous task a short one.

Prevents Colds From Spreading.

I heard of a wise mother who has an old-fashioned salt box which she keeps in her kitchen. Her youngest member of the family has a cold this morning. The mother took the salt box and poured a little salt in the water to prevent any other person using it until he is well. Then the glass and box are sterilized.

once, please—may I come to the house?" he asked.

"I'm leaving in an hour for a house party—there isn't time for me to see you," she answered.

"Where are you going? Oh, New York? So—what's that? I wanted to see you right away, before I left. I'll see you at the station," he told her. She thrust the receiver back on the hook with a little shrug of indifference. If that was what Fate had in store for her, so be it!

Her aunt came in as she was finishing her packing, bristling with disapproval. Virginia had always managed Mrs. Schuyler, and she, in turn, tried to manage Gloria.

"Will you kindly tell me where you were last night?" she began, coolly. "You go rushing off with a strange young man and stay all night, and then slip into the house and offer no explanation. Have you no regard for your reputation, or the name of your family? Nothing on earth can excuse such conduct—nothing on earth."

Gloria saw Thorpe Andrews' white face again for a moment, his sightless eyes staring up at her; she heard his voice again—"I can get my eyes open—I can't see." It would have been easy to come home, as Mimi had done, and left him there alone.

"I have no explanation to make," she told her aunt definitely. Evidently Mimi hadn't phoned, as she'd promised to, but what did that matter now? If she told the truth she'd be scolded for being a little fool; why didn't she defend herself with silence? If she didn't matter, anyway!

Tomorrow—Mimi on the Warpath.

There's Romance In Business, Says Woman Efficiency Expert sleep when she has begun one until it is finished.

A tiny little woman, feminine, charming, human, gracious, with a background of education and culture and an industrial training much broader than most men ever acquire, Mrs. Lynn provides a stimulus to those who contact her. No wonder everybody who stumbles into her office at 1408 Chandler building—especially if she is a woman—says: "You must stay in Atlanta and help us!"

Mrs. Lynn thinks Atlanta is on the threshold of an era of greater prosperity—that the south has not realized half its industrial possibilities—and regrets that she will not be able to tarry longer than will be required to complete a number of surveys of retail concerns.

St. Luke's Vacation School Will Open Monday Morning

The community vacation school of St. Luke's church will be opened Monday morning at 9 o'clock at 412 Courtland street.

All children from 5 to 12 are invited. There is no tuition. A daily school will be held where children will receive expert teaching without cost, where all denominations will be equally welcome and a daily round of happy work and well directed play for four or five profitable weeks will be given.

Efficient paid and volunteer workers will be in charge of kindergarten, primary and junior departments. Manual training, singing, dramatization of Bible stories, recreation directed in a happy atmosphere of homelike cheer will be included in the program.

Registration will begin Thursday and Friday, July 5 and 6, at 412 Courtland street.

The Constitution's Patterns

Pattern 3686 was used to make this stylish "one-piece" dress. It is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. A 38-inch size will require 47-8 yards of 42-inch material. For panel, collar and cuffs of contrasting material, 13-8 yards is required.

Checked or plaid suiting would be attractive for this style with facings of plain material in a matched shade. It is good for gingham, linen, serge, taffeta, tricot, Canton crepe and broadcloth. The width of the skirt at the foot is 21-4 yards.

Why a woman efficiency expert? I wanted to know. Louise Moore Lynn, "Efficiency Expert," and I were right. When I told her she said: "Sh! You know I am only a woman—and not a very big woman at that!"

And so the isn't—she is just five feet tall, but terribly erect—sort of understanding, if you know what I mean—and looks at you out of big, wide-apart blue-gray-yellow-green-hazel eyes as she saw clear through you and on beyond to something else you maybe didn't know. It was very interesting.

All depilatories destroy the hair, but since the directions warn you to remove the preparations as soon as they make the skin smart, there should be no danger to the skin in using them. Anything that would bleach the skin instantly would be risky to use.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes, in care of the "Beauty Chats" department, will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires a little time, however, owing to the great number received. Make your bath luxurious. lady's toilet that can cost more, or that need cost less. Scented bath crystals and fancy bags of herbs have the most extraordinary prices in some shops—yet you can duplicate everything at home with little trouble and almost no expense.

Do you live in the country? If so, you can grow herbs for the bath—the pungent, sweet-smelling kind are pleasant to use. Rosemary is delightful and so is lavender. Some people like thyme, and one reader told me that she gathered and dried mint from the garden, made tiny bags and stuffed them with the leaves and used this in the bath.

Used this way, none of these things are beautifying. But toilet vinegars, that is, bath vinegars added to the water, are beautifying because they are astringent and stimulating. You can take plain colorless vinegar, which is cheap enough to buy in quantity, and herbs to give it a nice odor, and use this in the bath. Parsley, by the way, is very bleaching. If you don't mind its odor, a small handful, crushed into the hot water of the bath, will benefit your skin.

If you want a real sea salt bath, and can't buy the bag of sea salt, buy the following: Sulphate of potassium, half a drachm; sulphate of sodium, one and a half ounces; sulphate of magnesium, one ounce. Chloride of magnesium, three drachms; chloride of calcium, one ounce; chloride of sodium, half a pound. Sounds complicated, doesn't it, but it isn't. This is enough for two baths, and it's cleansing, stimulating and healing to tender spots on the skin.

Why a woman efficiency expert? I wanted to know. Louise Moore Lynn, "Efficiency Expert," and I were right. When I told her she said: "Sh! You know I am only a woman—and not a very big woman at that!"

And so the isn't—she is just five feet tall, but terribly erect—sort of understanding, if you know what I mean—and looks at you out of big, wide-apart blue-gray-yellow-green-hazel eyes as she saw clear through you and on beyond to something else you maybe didn't know. It was very interesting.

Her Friend's Husband

CHAPTER XV.

A Reputation for Sale.

Gloria stood quite still for a moment, unable to move. "Crazy wild, just like her mother—her darling little mother—whom she had never seen! How cruel that woman was, condemning her in this way without knowing anything of what had really happened! In that moment Gloria felt that life had slipped her in the face. A wave of anger surged over her, leaving her trembling. Her reputation was for sale with any idle woman's gossip as the price for it!

She turned away, sick at heart, and the woman the truth conquered by a feeling of defiance. Let them talk, if they want to! The truth would come out, and they'd have to apologize. She wasn't going to lower herself by explaining to them! She ran blindly up the stairs, and turned into Virginia's room.

It was still cluttered with the litter left behind when Virginia dressed for her wedding journey. Gloria wandered about, looking at the things almost unconsciously, picking up a lace negligee, a gauzy pair of hose, and laying them down. The wedding gown lay across the bed, and she glanced at it and turned away with a sharp pang of pain at her heart. It should have been her wedding gown; she should have been the one who donned it to become the bride of Morton Phelps!

She went on down the hall to her own room, and crossed it to the dressing table. A telegram lay there. Idly

"I insist on your telling me where you were last night!" she tore it open, indifferent to the message it contained.

"Won't you come to us for two weeks—having house party—beginning Friday—wire reply—lots of nice men—crazy to see you."

"LORRAINE."

Gloria read it carelessly, tossed it down on the dressing table, then picked it up again. It would be a good thing to get away from Crossways at once, and leave the gossip talking without her to listen to them. Lorraine Slater was a delightful young matron, who had been a neighbor during her girlhood, and had married a man much older than she and moved away. Gloria had heard of her beautiful summer home in the mountains, and the society papers frequently mentioned the famous Slater house parties. There would be a gay crowd, and it would be easy to forget her own unhappiness with such efficient help as Lorraine's guests would give her, Gloria decided. She picked up the telephone and telegraphed her acceptance. She would spend a day or so in New York shopping, she decided, and then go on to Crossways. There was a train that she could get that afternoon.

The telephone jangled as she was tossing some things into her trunk. Answering it, she found that Guy Richards was at the other end.

"Gloria, I want to see you at

"She is called Black Mary. Some say that she is not quite sound mentally. She has a good heart and really helps a lot of poor people, including herself, with the money she begs."
The clock struck eleven.
"I must look up the Maggie toters," said Riddles as he rose from the bench. "I'll meet you here tomorrow evening at eight-thirty."
He had been planning a revolution, and next morning, bright and early, he got it under way.
It was a still, clear Saturday morning. Cawkins was twenty minutes late in getting out of his room.
"There's a lot of hay down, and we ought to get it under cover before Sunday," said Riddles to him.
"Don't let that worry you," Cawkins answered gruffly.
The other men who had just come down from the quarters stood near him.
"I've got something that belongs to you," said Riddles with a look at Cawkins.
"What's that?" the latter asked.
"A piece of information," Riddles went on in a kindly voice. "It ought to be worth a lot to you, but I ain't going to charge ye a cent for it. Everybody knows it but you. Looks as if the folks had been trying to keep it from ye. There's been a death in your family."
"What?" Cawkins exclaimed.
"Who's dead?"
"Your soul," Riddles answered calmly.
"What do ye mean?" Cawkins demanded.
Riddles answered very gently as he whistled with his jack-knife.
"I mean that you're a crook—a dirty, disreputable, damn crook. It wouldn't matter so much, but you are makin' crooks of these men. If they were in the army they would be let out and shot for desertion in the face of the enemy and for sleeping at their posts. They would deserve it. You are turning them into criminals. It's just as bad as stealing this woman's time as to steal her money."
For half a moment Cawkins was dumb with astonishment. Riddles' mastery of self-possession had floored him. There was no room for argument as to the facts stated. If Riddles' manner had been loud and quarrelsome, Cawkins would, in some fashion, have had it out with him on the spot. But the new man had made him feel like clay, in the hands of the potter.
"What are ye going to do about it?" he demanded under his breath.
"Going to be very nice to ye," said Riddles in the same gentle tone. "Going to give ye a chance to reform an' live honest an' put in a day's work for a day's pay. If you refuse to do that, I'll have a talk with the madam."
"You can go plumb to hell!" said Cawkins angrily.
"Now don't keep aintin' the wrong way—like a misplaced sign-board," Riddles answered.
Suddenly Miss Harriet Martin stepped out of the woodshed and confronted the group of men. She was dressed for the saddle. Riddles enjoyed telling his friends of the freshness and beauty of her face, of the correctness of her figure and of the indignation in her dark eyes as she stood before them.
"I was drawing on my boots in the shed where Mary had polished them," said the young lady. "I couldn't help hearing your talk. She turned to Riddles and added: "Reuben Smith, I thank you and shall always be grateful to you. We have known of the shameful conduct of these men. But we have not known what to do about it. I shall ask my mother to put you in charge of them."
"If you believe that liar, we will walk a day," he whole force—women an' men," Cawkins threatened.
"Miss Martin, if I was you I would say, 'Walk,'" said Riddles.
The young lady turned to Cawkins and said, "Walk," in the same quiet tone that Riddles had used.
The whole force left that morning, only Mrs. Martin's maid remained. The chauffeur took them to Coulterville. Riddles hired a neighbor, whose hayrack was full of hay, to take them to the meadow flat.
"We have decided to give you a home in the house now that the maid's gone," Mrs. Martin said to Riddles on his return. "You will have a bath and books to read if you care for them. Come, I will show it to you."
"The bath will be kind o' soothing," said Riddles as he followed her.
When they had come to the room she added: "Here are some clothes and boots which belonged to my husband. I wish you would try them on and let us see how you look. Would you mind?"
"Not a bit," Riddles answered.
"Try the riding breeches and the gray coat. When you are ready, come down to the sun parlor."
There were a number of suits of clothes and undergarments hanging in the closet. There were soft flannel shirts and collars and neckties on the chiffonier. Riddles took a luxurious bath and put on clean underclothes and the riding costume of the late Mr. Martin, all of which fitted him fairly well.
"Mr. Martin!" Miss Harriet exclaimed as he entered the sun parlor. "I wouldn't know him."
"Nor I. He's quite a different man," said Mrs. Martin. "I don't mind, I wish you would help my maid with the luncheon. Mr. Waters is going to be here and we'll have to make out the best we can. After luncheon I want you to ride down to Belvedere with Harriet and try to get a cook."

Riddles broiled the steak while the maid baked the crust for the short-cake and heated a can of soup. The maid, who was not accustomed to cooking, burnt her hand in the oven and was not able to do the serving.
"Don't worry, ma'am. I'll jump in and do my best," Riddles said to Mrs. Martin when the latter came into the kitchen.
He was an admirable butler. That dining room had never seen a more perfect or a more dignified service. As the luncheon progressed Mrs. Martin when the latter came into the kitchen.

"We have decided to give you a home in the house now that the maid's gone," Mrs. Martin said to Riddles on his return. "You will have a bath and books to read if you care for them. Come, I will show it to you."
"The bath will be kind o' soothing," said Riddles as he followed her.
When they had come to the room she added: "Here are some clothes and boots which belonged to my husband. I wish you would try them on and let us see how you look. Would you mind?"
"Not a bit," Riddles answered.
"Try the riding breeches and the gray coat. When you are ready, come down to the sun parlor."
There were a number of suits of clothes and undergarments hanging in the closet. There were soft flannel shirts and collars and neckties on the chiffonier. Riddles took a luxurious bath and put on clean underclothes and the riding costume of the late Mr. Martin, all of which fitted him fairly well.
"Mr. Martin!" Miss Harriet exclaimed as he entered the sun parlor. "I wouldn't know him."
"Nor I. He's quite a different man," said Mrs. Martin. "I don't mind, I wish you would help my maid with the luncheon. Mr. Waters is going to be here and we'll have to make out the best we can. After luncheon I want you to ride down to Belvedere with Harriet and try to get a cook."

Riddles broiled the steak while the maid baked the crust for the short-cake and heated a can of soup. The maid, who was not accustomed to cooking, burnt her hand in the oven and was not able to do the serving.
"Don't worry, ma'am. I'll jump in and do my best," Riddles said to Mrs. Martin when the latter came into the kitchen.
He was an admirable butler. That dining room had never seen a more perfect or a more dignified service. As the luncheon progressed Mrs. Martin when the latter came into the kitchen.

JUST NUTS

COULD YOU USE SOME NICE KITCHEN LINOLEUM?

OH, NO! I ALWAYS LET THE WIFE BUY OUR FURNITURE

YES, BUT IT'S THE FAULT OF THE MATERIAL.

NO! NO! CARELESSNESS ON HIS PART.

I ASK YOU ISN'T IT TERRIBLE?

"What are ye going to do about it?" he demanded under his breath.
"Going to be very nice to ye," said Riddles in the same gentle tone. "Going to give ye a chance to reform an' live honest an' put in a day's work for a day's pay. If you refuse to do that, I'll have a talk with the madam."
"You can go plumb to hell!" said Cawkins angrily.
"Now don't keep aintin' the wrong way—like a misplaced sign-board," Riddles answered.
Suddenly Miss Harriet Martin stepped out of the woodshed and confronted the group of men. She was dressed for the saddle. Riddles enjoyed telling his friends of the freshness and beauty of her face, of the correctness of her figure and of the indignation in her dark eyes as she stood before them.
"I was drawing on my boots in the shed where Mary had polished them," said the young lady. "I couldn't help hearing your talk. She turned to Riddles and added: "Reuben Smith, I thank you and shall always be grateful to you. We have known of the shameful conduct of these men. But we have not known what to do about it. I shall ask my mother to put you in charge of them."
"If you believe that liar, we will walk a day," he whole force—women an' men," Cawkins threatened.
"Miss Martin, if I was you I would say, 'Walk,'" said Riddles.
The young lady turned to Cawkins and said, "Walk," in the same quiet tone that Riddles had used.
The whole force left that morning, only Mrs. Martin's maid remained. The chauffeur took them to Coulterville. Riddles hired a neighbor, whose hayrack was full of hay, to take them to the meadow flat.
"We have decided to give you a home in the house now that the maid's gone," Mrs. Martin said to Riddles on his return. "You will have a bath and books to read if you care for them. Come, I will show it to you."

FIRST PAYMENT MADE FOR BATTLE GROUND

Washington, July 3.—The first installment of $10,000 has been paid.

for the purchase of the ground on which the first and second battles of Manassas were fought during the war between the states. E. W. R. Ewing, president of the Manassas Battlefield Confederate Park, Inc., announced today that another $75,000 will be paid within a year and the remaining $100,000 will be paid by the state of Virginia, Mr. Ewing said.

The tract will be converted into a park to keep alive the memory of the historic battles. It was on this field that General Jackson won his title "Stonewall," and where General Robert E. Lee astonished the world by his military strategy.

Rosenbloom Resigns.
Savannah, Ga., July 3.—(Special.) Rabbi Ben Zion L. Rosenbloom, of the B. R. Jacob Jewish congregation here, today tendered his resignation as head of the church, effective July 15, to study for several years in eastern universities. He was also supervisor of the Hebrew school here.

Slashes in Rolls Of Departments Made on Tuesday

Working forces of all municipal departments, except the sanitary department, were readjusted Tuesday in conformity with appropriations made in the June finance sheet passed by council and the chairman's board Monday afternoon. By withdrawal of appropriations to pay them, fifty-nine jobs were abolished.

The readjustment was made by department heads on advice of City Attorney James L. Mayson who ruled that no funds could be made available to pay the prescribed fifty-nine, even though Alderman J. L. Carpenter had prevented the finance sheet from going into operation for another two weeks by giving notice of a motion to reconsider after the aldermanic board had adopted it.

Provided No Money.

Alderman Carpenter's motion, however, did not provide any money for the employees whose jobs he sought to save by it. The fifty-nine employees were not discharged by the budget; they simply discontinued their pay. The January budget, which provided pay for them, automatically died July 1. No money, therefore, was available to pay them until the new budget is adopted. The new budget does not provide any for the fifty-nine. The mayor's head of the amendment Saturday would require a two-thirds majority to override and that majority can not be rallied against the mayor.

Therefore, the municipal department heads, with unanimous expressions of regret, set about Tuesday to make their payrolls conform to the budget.

Clerks, inspectors and meter readers were dropped from the waterworks department, including the head bookkeeper, who had held the post for 16 years. Clerks were dropped in all offices. The construction department had been reduced Saturday by dropping 15 men in anticipation of the adoption of the sheet. The mayor's office was dropped but his services were retained by his transfer to the city hall custodian's department and reassignment to the mayor's office.

Causes Critical Condition.

Chief John Jentzen, of the sanitary department, stated Tuesday that the holding up of the finance sheet had caused a critical condition in his department.

There is only one day in the whole year that is an actual working day, that is the Fourth of July. At least, that is the way R. F. Shedd, of the Atlanta branch of the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, has it figured. The assertion may seem peculiar to say the least, but then Mr. Shedd comes forward with figures which are both reasonable and accurate.

In the first place Mr. Shedd deducts from the grand total of 365 days a third of the number, or 122 days for devotion at the shrine of Morpheus, the god of sleep. Enormous medical support this contention. They say that eight hours a day should be spent in sleep by a normal person. This may reduce us all to the level of modern Rip Van Winkles, but there are the medical men to tell the world that it is good for a man. This leaves a total of 243 days.

Nobody works on Sunday, that is a fact. This is even required by law and infraction of the rule of desecrating the Lord's day or working on the Sabbath, according to the phraseology of the statutes in different states, may have the disagreeable consequence of a subpoena to the recorder's court.

Now we have divided down to 60 days to make a living in. But again the statistical wizard tells us that an average man or woman spends a total of 28 days a year at the table.

This statement may seem like a direct accusation of Epicureanism or Lucullianism, but it loses its strength, and personal character when we may think for our consolation that it includes everybody. There may be some who spend less than 28 days in eating and most persons love to linger a little longer after a good repast. It is only human and, therefore, pardonable.

In the meantime our total of 365 days has dwindled down to a mere 15. But Mr. Shedd must even deduct these figures to the great chagrin, no doubt, of employers of all kinds. For he comes with the suggestion that two weeks' holiday a year is not too much for any one. In that time nature may rebuild and restore some of the vitality and energy expended during the strenuous days just referred to.

Deduct 14 from 15 and one day remains.

Now Mr. Shedd comes forward with the sublime suggestion that this is the only working day left in the whole year and we have his word for it that it is the Fourth of July.

So we have at last come to the department.

The budget logs off seven of the sixteen sanitary inspectors but provides for horses for others in order that they may cover more territory. The horses can not be purchased because the budget will be ineffective until passed again by council and the aldermanic board July 10, and the seven men, under Mayor's ruling, can not be paid because no appropriation has been made for them under the January budget, which expired July 1, and none will be made under the June budget if it is passed in its present form July 10.

Chief Jentzen requested a conference, for Wednesday with Dr. Moon, chairman of the sanitary committee, and L. N. Ragsdale, chairman of the finance committee. It was indicated that he will not ask for a special appropriation to keep the seven sanitary inspectors at work until the horses provided in the finance sheet from going into operation for another two weeks by giving notice of a motion to reconsider after the aldermanic board had adopted it.

Will Meet Payrolls.

B. Graham West, city comptroller, stated Tuesday that the regular payrolls would not get July 14 despite the fact that no appropriations have been made to meet them. The appropriations cannot be made until general council meets Monday, July 16. Since the money, however, is on hand as usual to pay off the city's employees, and since formal and official appropriation of funds is certain to be made by adoption of the budget the Monday after the usual pay day, the comptroller indicated that no city employee will have to go without Sunday dinner merely for the splitting of a legal hair.

The case of the prescribed fifty-nine, however, is different. The January budget, which made provision for them, is no longer effective. The sentiment of council as expressed in the vote for the June budget, indicates that no provision will be made for them.

One Day of Work In Every Year, So It Is Figured

Alabama Klansmen Parade in Protest On Tuskegee Streets

Tuskegee, Ala., July 5.—Streets lined with Macon county citizens to-night a thousand silent troopers of the Ku Klux Klan as they steadily marched the streets of Tuskegee, in protest against negro officials at the government hospital for disabled negro veterans here. The parade was declared to represent the spirit of 50,000 Alabama klansmen.

The klansmen, in automobiles, toured the public highways of the countryside, before beginning their march through the city streets. Intense interest has been shown here recently over the threatened move of the federal government to place negro officials at the hospital here.

While the klansmen paraded, in the distance was the flare of a fiery cross 45 feet high, symbol of the Ku Klux Klan.

Shot Twelve Times; Wounded Texan Is Expected to Recover

Fort Worth, Texas, July 3.—John Beal Sned, wounded at Paducah yesterday and now in a Quanaa, Texas, hospital, was able to speak to his attorneys in Fort Worth over long distance telephone this morning and declared he would recover despite the twelve wounds in his body. C. B. Berry, accused of shooting Sned, is in custody here on $5,000 bond.

Sned, central figure in the slaying of the two Boyces, noted Pan Handle ranchman in 1912, shot Berry last March after Berry had killed Sned's son-in-law, Wood Barton.

THREATENED TO KILL WIFE, POLICE CHARGE

Accused of having threatened to kill his wife, and of having forced her and his baby out of his residence at 182 East Georgia avenue, H. Pleater is held in the city stockade under charge of disorderly conduct. Officers claim that Pleater was intoxicated. McDaniel and Cartright made the arrest.
